

Fridays at the Seminary

Technology, Theology and Teaching

presented by

Mary E. Hess, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of Educational Leadership, Luther Seminary

December 2, 2011, 9 AM – 3 PM

At

Virginia Theological Seminary
3737 Seminary Road
Alexandria, VA

All around us digital technologies are reshaping our environments, our practices of communication and our learning. What do these new cultures of learning mean for theological education and faith formation? We will reflect on walking this particular road to Emmaus in the midst of social media, and share some of the best current research into teaching and learning in these contexts.

"Understood and used well, digital technologies can enhance teaching and learning, and better align them with Christian belief and practice. Current educational research and proven methods will be used to explore the benefits and challenges of e-learning in church, school, and seminary".

Thanks to Dr. Roger Ferlo, Director of the Institute of Christian Formation and Leadership at VTS, we have arranged a 1/2 price Consortium rate for Consortium institutions, which comes to $20 a person (and includes lunch).

To Register Online: <http://www.vts.edu/icfl/registration> and go down to next "Register for Event" link. Or email icfl@vts.edu or call 703-461-1752.